PGDRM: About the College

Focusing on advanced concepts of research methodology, the course aims at developing in prospective professional researchers the requisite skills for pursuing the most appropriate methodologies for research studies. In research, especially in social science research where issues and problems are related to human world and social interactions, expertise and versatility in research methodology is a must as well as strong ethical foundation. This course will aim at fulfilling these requirements which would help the beginners learn research skills and experienced researchers, to hone their skills and improve the quality of research.

Course Outcomes:

On completion of the course, students should be able to:

- Understand the social theories as well as different research paradigms.
- Appreciate the relevance, scope and utility of research on various issues and in different settings.
- Obtain information about what constitutes ethical research.
- Gain the knowledge of the steps of research in different research methodologies and with varied research designs.
- Learn about statistics and software packages for quantitative and qualitative analysis.
- Gain knowledge about mixed methodology and participatory research.

About the College

College of Social Work (Autonomous) Nirmala Niketan, Mumbai, founded in 1955 envisaged in contributing to build a social order that would be based on human dignity and social justice. The founders of the institution envisioned to build a cadre of young and competent professionals having a global perspective and a strong value base to raise the voices of the vulnerable and exploited.

About the Research Unit

In order to highlight the importance and value of scientific research to Social Work education and practice, the Research Unit of Nirmala Niketan was set up on September 8, 1993. It has been functioning in line with the overall vision of the College of Social Work and its commitment to alleviate human suffering and promote human development. The Research Unit focuses on systematic, evidence based, and action-oriented research that produces user-friendly social work expertise for social work education, practice, policy, and advocacy. Its purpose is to investigate effective field practice approaches and person-centered interventions that will improve people's quality of life.
